Bold and immersive debut short story collection for fans of IN OPEN WATER and SUCH A FUN AGE

‘Eloquent, accessible, and full of heart, these interconnected stories draw one into an unforgettable group of young Black-British friends. Funny, thought provoking and deeply moving. An astonishing debut.’ – Taiye Selasi, author of GHANA MUST GO

In FOR SUCH A TIME AS THIS, Shani Akilah deftly explores the connections that bind us; how we make them, maintain them, or even break them when they no longer serve us.

Gabby and Daniel cross paths at the wedding of a mutual friend. They both wonder if this could be the start of something, but fate has other ideas.

When Niah tries to call out her employer for their empty words about diversity and inclusion, she comes face to face with racism reaching right to the very top.

Sharna is holding onto her own secret when she sets out for Jamaica to visit her grandfather, on a trip that throws fresh light onto the family history she has always taken for granted.

Shani Akilah’s stunning collection brings to life the stories of Black-British Londoners as they explore friendship and romance, community and independence, and navigate their way through the relationships that make them who they are.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Shani Akilah is a Black-British writer and screenwriter of Caribbean heritage. She has a Masters degree in African Studies from Oxford University, with research exploring counter-diasporic return and issues of home and belonging amongst second-generation British-Ghanaians. Shani is an avid reader and book influencer and is a literary judge for the Nota Bene Prize 2023.

Passionate about community, for six years Shani ran the Nyah Network, a book club for Black women and founded Bankra, a contributor-based platform, which explored the navigated identities of Black millennials. One of Shani’s stories, ‘Love in Crisis’, was published in the first volume of Untitled Voices. She was born, raised and currently lives in South London.

A dazzling and captivating debut deftly exploring millennial relationships and the obligations of love

A Sunday Times 'Paperback of the Week'

'A clever novel about vulnerability and victimhood that subtly subverts the reader's expectations' – Sunday Times

'A sensitive, smooth-toned and absorbingly honest novel that makes us question our inner worlds, at a time when this kind of self-examination might be the thing that saves us.' – Diana Evans

'This is a novel for anyone who has ever known what it is to be conflicted in falling in love, feeling the expectations of our families but also ourselves; it is for anyone who has ever felt their heart breaking under the weight of it all.' – Huma Qureshi, author of HOW WE MET

In the wake of first heartbreak, Nur somehow meets his perfect woman. Yasmina is bright, beautiful and, what's most remarkable, she's into him too. Before long, they are inseparable.

But no relationship is perfect. For Yasmina, the complexities of family and cultural expectation are something she wants to navigate with Nur by her side. For Nur, the pressures of being the 'good son' are suffocating, and soon threaten everything he wants for his future with Yasmina. Can he find a way to offer her everything she deserves?

Deftly exploring millennial relationships alongside the complexities of immigrant obligation and racial prejudice, GOOD INTENTIONS is a captivating and powerful modern love story that announces a thrilling new voice in British literature.

The residents of the country village of Ladismith are all watching a Marilyn Monroe movie in the town's local cinema when Frik du Toit, owner of the local antique shop, dies suddenly in their midst. So Tannie Maria, smalltown newspaper agony aunt and sometime amateur sleuth, finds herself in the middle of a murder investigation once again.

It seems like an impossible job to narrow down the growing list of suspects, especially as Maria helps to catalogue Frik's belongings – all the while nursing a broken heart, since she is newly-estranged from her policeman sweetheart Detective Henk Kannemeyer. The investigation becomes even more urgent when Frik's nephew and heir, Tom, is also found dead. Lyrical, moving accounts of family, immigration, divided worlds and the frontlines of healthcare, by a prize-winning British-Filipino poet and nurse

Romalyn is a writer from a family of healers. Her mother left the Philippines to work in England – leaving Romalyn as a ‘left-behind child’, like many in a country where mothers must seek a living caring for others elsewhere. Following in her footsteps later, Romalyn became a nurse too – and a ground-breaking and award-winning poet. She was the first East-Asian writer to win the Manchester Poetry Prize and the Poetry London Prize and is much in demand as a speaker and tutor and also for prose and poetry commissions for journals and anthologies. Versions of several of the essays in BETTER THAN FLOWERS have been published in anthologies.

Romalyn’s interlinking essays in BETTER THAN FLOWERS span the medical and the mythical, the political and the personal, bringing long overdue attention to the lives of migrant nurses and their transnational families, and highlighting the price they pay for leaving their homeland to serve the British public.

BETTER THAN FLOWERS explores language and memory, migration and belonging, brokenness and wholeness, nursing and healing. As Romalyn vividly depicts her own childhood and family history, she also shines a light on the struggle many migrant nurses face to stay true to their culture and connected to their faraway families, as they care for others with steely resolve, while trying to achieve their own dreams in a foreign land.

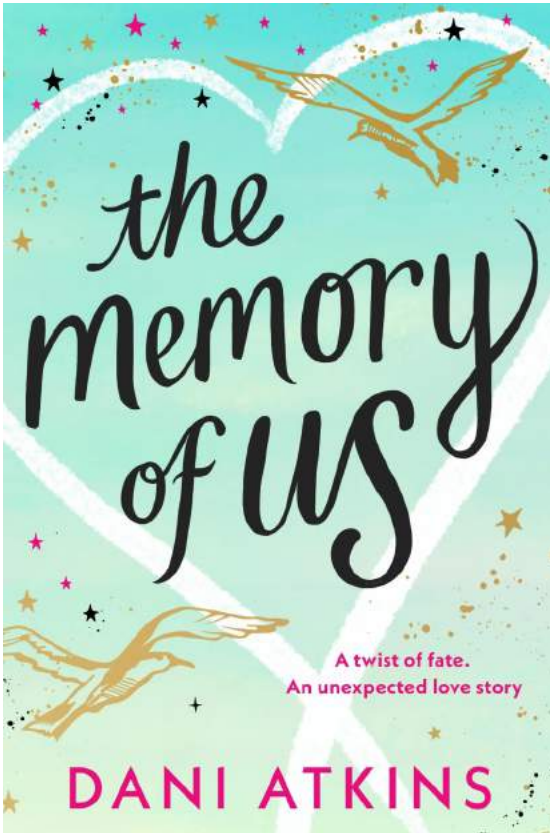

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Romalyn Ante FRSL is a prize-winning British-Filipino poet, essayist, and editor. She grew up in the Philippines and migrated to her second home, Wolverhampton, in 2005. She is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, was awarded the Jerwood Compton Poetry Fellowship and is an editorial board member for Poetry London magazine.

Romalyn’s debut poetry collection ANTIEMETIC FOR HOMESICKNESS was published by Chatto & Windus. Romalyn is completing a new poetry collection, AGIMAT & OTHER POEMS, and working on further creative non-fiction and a prose memoir.

Wythenshawe, South Manchester, England. 1985.

The Dodds family once ruled Manchester’s criminal underworld; now the men are dead, leaving three generations of women trapped in a house haunted by violence. A house that also harbours an unregistered baby, child of the house’s youngest mother.

Matriarch Nedra presides over the household, which bustles with activity as she prepares the welcome feast for her grandson Kelly’s return from prison.

Her grieving daughter-in-law Carol is visited by both the welcome, intimate ghost of her murdered lover, and by Mac, an ageing criminal enforcer, a man who may just offer her a real and possible future. And Jan, the teenage tearaway, is running as fast as she can from her mother, her grandmother, and her own unnamed baby.

Over the course of a few days, the Dodds women must each confront the true legacy of the men who have defined their lives; and seize the opportunity to break the cycle for good.

During one relentlessly hot summer, two young women's lives are about to collide in the most unexpected ways

COSTANZA

Love, art & desire in 1636 Rome, based on a real woman and Bernini’s muse: a 2024 super-lead debut

History calls her a muse. Temptress. Fallen woman.

This is her story.

In the scorched city of Rome, the cobbled streets hum with gossip and sin. Costanza Piccolomini is a respectable young wife – until she meets Gianlorenzo Bernini, the famed sculptor and star of Roman society, whose jet-black gaze matches his dark temper. From the second they set eyes upon each other, a fatal attraction is born.

Their secret love burns with a passion that consumes them. But with every stolen kiss and illicit tryst, Costanza’s reputation is at stake. Meanwhile, Bernini has a dangerous desire: he wants to make Costanza immortal. He vows to possess her not just in body and soul, but also in marble.

When Bernini unveils his sculpture of Costanza she is exposed as his lover, marking the undoing of their affair – and the beginning of a scandal which will rock Roman society. For Bernini would rather destroy Costanza than let her go.

Betrayed. Abandoned. Banished. This was meant to be the end of Costanza’s story. But Costanza is no ordinary woman: from the ashes, she will rise...

COSTANZA is a dizzying and sensual historical novel that brings to life a feminist icon who has been written out of history. This addictive tale of desire and betrayal is perfect for fans of THE GIRL WITH THE PEARL EARRING and THE MINIATURIST.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Rachel is a speechwriter and communications expert who was a winner at the Irish Novel Fair 2022, a runner-up in the Harper’s Bazaar short story competition, and has also been highly commended by the Historical Writers’ Association.

Cambridge, 1994. Professor Don Lamb is a revered art historian at the height of his powers, consumed by the book he is writing about the skies of the Venetian master Tiepolo. However, his academic brilliance belies a deep inexperience of life and love.

When an explosive piece of contemporary art is installed on the lawn of his college, it sets in motion Don's abrupt departure from Cambridge to take up a role at a south London museum. There he befriends Ben, a young artist who draws him into the anarchic 1990s British art scene and Soho's nightlife.

A darkly enthralling novel of theatre and mystery, perfect for fans of Susanna Clarke, Neil Gaiman and Edward Gorey – and the many fans of Edward Carey!

‘Witty and dark... A wonderfully strange and quirky tale about the power of penning and performing tales.’ – Kirkus Reviews

‘All of Edward Carey’s work is profound and delightful.’ – Max Porter

‘An eccentric atmosphere, a macabre sense of humour, we experience this story with a sense of youthful joy.’ – Olga Tokarczuk, on LITTLE

Norfolk, 1901. England’s queen has died, and her aging son has finally taken the throne. In Norwich, bright young Edith Holler spends her days among the eccentric denizens of the crumbling Holler Theatre. In fact, she has never left the building, warned by her domineering father that the playhouse will tumble down if she ever leaves its confines.

Fascinated by tales of the city she knows only from afar, she decides to write a play of her own: an adaptation of the legend of Mawther Meg, a vicious figure said to have used the blood of children to make the local delicacy known as Beetle Spread. But when her father suddenly announces his engagement to a peculiar, imposing woman named Margaret Unthank, heir to the Beetle Spread fortune, Edith scrambles to protect her father, the theatre, and her play – one thing that’s truly hers – from the newcomer’s sinister designs.

Teeming with unforgettable characters – including the whole cast of the theatrical Holler family and the theatre bear – and illuminated by Edward’s trademark fantastical illustrations, EDITH HOLLER is a surprisingly modern fable of one young woman’s struggle to escape her family’s control and in so doing to craft her own creative destiny.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Edward Carey is an acclaimed artist-novelist whose debut OBSERVATORY MANSIONS was sold in 15 languages and was described by John Fowles as ‘proving the potential brilliance of the novel form’. Born in England, he teaches at the University of Austin, Texas.

Edward’s most recent work of fiction was the haunting and beautiful novella, THE SWALLOWED MAN, and before that his extraordinary novel, LITTLE, a tour de force of art, revolution, love and memory, has now sold over 100,000 copies in 20 languages.

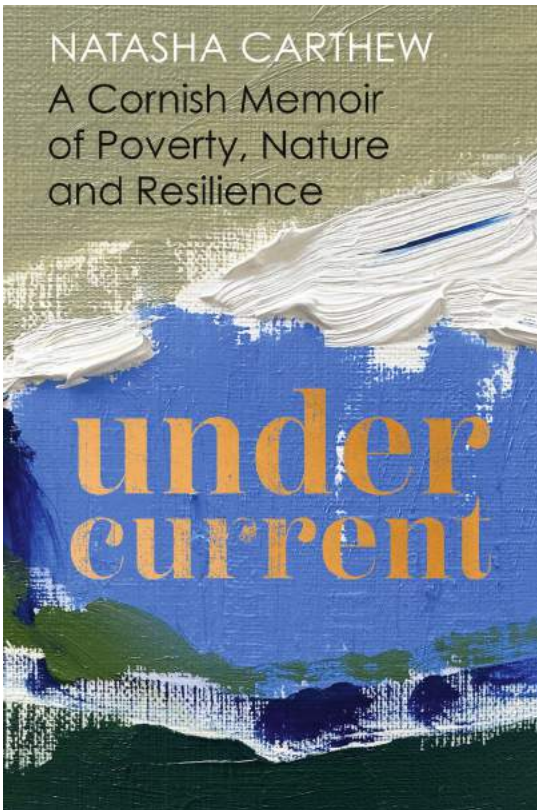

Edward is currently writing a novel set in a children’s hospital called A CHILD CALLED BED.

Natasha Carthew was born into a world that sat alongside picture-postcard Cornwall, one where second homes took the sea view of council properties, summer months shifted the course of people's lives, and wealth converged with poverty on sandy beaches.

In the rockpools and hedgerows of the natural world, Natasha found solace in the beauty of the landscape, and in the mobile library she found her means of escape. ‘An author who makes historical fiction come gloriously alive’ – The Times

‘I rank Elizabeth Chadwick with such historical novelist stars as Dorothy Dunnett and Anya Seton.’ – Sharon Kay Penman

‘Chadwick’s depiction of the Middle Ages is sure and subtle, and her skill in imagining the private conversations that lead to the great decisions of their time is enjoyable.’ – Publisher’s Weekly

In 1338, Jeanette, young cousin to King Edward III, travels to Antwerp with the royal court and falls for Thomas Holland, a young knight hoping to restore his family’s sullied reputation. Driven by passion and necessity, Thomas and Jeanette secretly marry but are almost immediately forced apart by war and circumstance.

Led to believe Thomas is dead, Jeanette is persuaded by her mother into marrying Lord William Montagu, heir to the Earldom of Salisbury. When Thomas returns and demands Jeanette back, Montagu refuses, and the fight begins. Against a tumultuous backdrop of high chivalry, deadly warfare, devastating plague and savage rivalry, Jeanette must stand her own ground and make her choice.

Chadwick yet again casts fresh light on a historical character and readers will thrill to the story of Jeanette, known to history as Joan of Kent.

A sweeping, spellbinding novel with shades of Gabriel García Márquez and Carlos Ruiz Zafón

Lisbon, 1954. In the Military History Archives a mysterious figure steals the Last Will and Testament of Garoto Bárbaro de Castro, a man born into slavery in Mozambique in 1800.

Through the many pages of the testament and the unfolding story of the objects Garoto has bequeathed, we learn about his remarkable and often brutal life, and the many other lives somehow connected to his – including that of his descendent Nuno Bárbaro de Castro, the archival thief. The violence of centuries of slavery and war does not stay buried, and the effects of the past echo in the lives of apparently disconnected people all over the world – in Angola, in Cuba and in Louisiana’s Angola prison.

Spanning four hundred years in its gripping and colourful narrative, THE WRECKERS examines the consequences of prolonged civil war in Angola, and the long-term impact of slavery on both sides of the Atlantic.

An unforgettable interwoven narrative and a triumphant return, a decade on from Clark’s acclaimed first novel THE RAW MAN (UK: Jonathan Cape, 2011).

Praise for THE RAW MAN:

‘An extraordinary novel, and a work of rare conception, bringing together, within one individual, the painfully conflicted history of southern Africa.’ – Brian Chikwava

‘This dark, graceful novel challenges all the conventions. The result is mythic, dark and oracular.’ – Adam Johnson

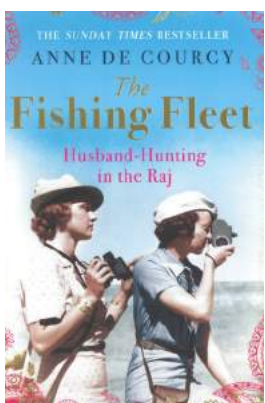

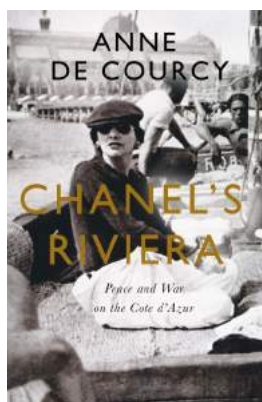

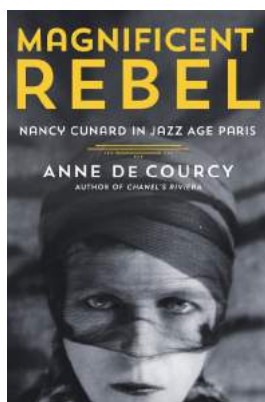

‘The wonderful, poetic voice, at once fantastic and realistic, stands out from contemporary African literature.’ – Alain Mabanckou

‘Potent and strange.’ – Jonathan Barnes, Literary Review

Locked-room mystery about a group of saturation divers trapped in a chamber with a dead body, and the seven days they must wait until they can come out

Brooke Adams has been a professional saturation diver for five years. After checking her dive helmet and suit, she climbs into a ship's saturation chamber through a steel hatch. She's the last of the six-person team to enter a space no larger than an average bathroom. When the hatch is closed and sealed, blow-down begins. Brooke pinches her nose to equalise her ears and the heat inside rises to tropical levels as divers breathe Heliox in order to survive the pressure of being 800 feet below the surface of the North Sea.

But when Brooke and her bellman ascend, they discover one of their colleagues on the cusp of death. As medics assist via the intercom, and the ship's captain watches impotently through a chamber porthole, the man succumbs to his injuries. Now, they must all live in close quarters with a corpse who died from an unknown cause...

It will take seven more days of decompression, locked away together, before the hatch can be opened. How do the remaining divers protect themselves from an unknown threat amongst them?

The beauty of an undersea world juxtaposed against bare steel, intrusive thoughts, and the constant struggle not to give way to panic. Mind games, exhaustion, suspicion, and most of all... pressure.

An exceptional first-of-its-kind memoir about working as a home carer, won at auction by Fig Tree

EVERY KIND OF PEOPLE is a compassionate, warm-hearted and profound book that stands alongside works about medical care like Christie Watson's THE LANGUAGE OF KINDNESS, but with its beautiful writing it will also appeal to fans of memoirs like THE OUTFIT and THE SALT PATH.

Anxious and burnt out, Kate has left a senior role in the National Health Service and is looking for a new, less stressful job. Believing she's found this in care work, she signs with an agency and is soon plunged into a challenging and eye-opening new world.

Facing low pay, long journeys between homes and pressurised thirty-minute visits, all combined with the shocking onset of the Covid-19 pandemic, Kate soon realises the job is about far more than washing, feeding and dressing vulnerable, often lonely men and women. They are people who have much to teach her too.

At the same time Kate is also caring for Greg, a seriously ill friend who is living on the fringes of society. Sometimes stretched to the limit, she comes to realise that in the midst of it all, she has found her vocation, that care work can be joyful too, and that to care is the most important thing of all.

Kate's story has a deep humanity at its heart, a crucial message shared with the sure touch of a natural writer. EVERY KIND OF PEOPLE is her first book and has already struck chords with many readers in the publishing community – and promises to be a striking title for 2024, published with a major campaign by Fig Tree.

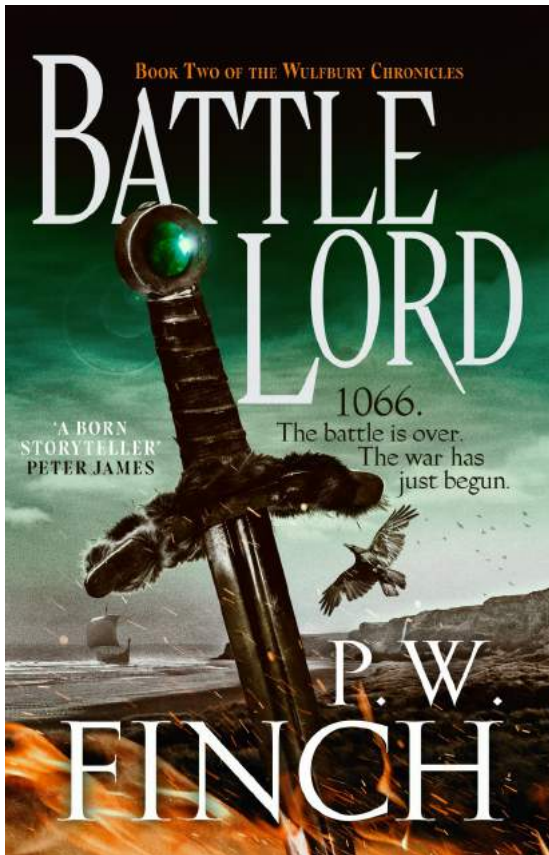

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kathryn Faulke is a pseudonym. The author was runner-up in the Wasafiri International New Writing Prize and won the Mslexia Memoir Prize for an earlier version of EVERY KIND OF PEOPLE.

She is now working on her next book, about working in nursing homes on the Norfolk coast, and rediscovering the natural world of her childhood.

Only his skill at arms will keep him alive...

THE BERLIN TRILOGY

Jenny Glanfield

An epic trilogy chronicling the lives of six generations of the Jochum family, owners of the luxurious Hotel Quadriga in Berlin

From its opening during the splendour of the imperial era, through the tragedy of the First World War, the wild abandon of the 1920s, to the dramatic rise of Hitler and the tearing down of the Berlin Wall, the Hotel Quadriga is the background to an epic tale charting the fate and fortunes of three families whose lives are irrevocably entwined.

Book 1: THE HOTEL QUADRIGA (first published 1988)

In 1871, the nation of Germany is born. Karl Jochum, the son of a sweet maker, rises from humble beginnings to become the creator of Berlin's most luxurious hotel, the Hotel Quadriga. Behind its façade, the lives and loves of Karl, his wife Ricarda and their daughters, Viktoria and Luise, are enacted, together with the wealthy Kraus, and aristocratic von Biederstein families.

Book 2: VIKTORIA (first published 1989)

January 1933. From the balcony of the Hotel Quadriga, Viktoria Jochum-Kraus watches Hitler's stormtroopers march beneath the Brandenburg Gate, heralding the beginning of the Third Reich. Strong minded Viktoria has run the Quadriga for many years. But in Hitler's Germany, women have no place in business. Slowly, control slips from Viktoria's grasp. But Viktoria is an indomitable spirit and even as war wreaks devastation on the city, her courage never falters...

Book 3: CHILDREN OF THEIR TIME (first published 1994)

Stefan Jochum returns to Berlin in the Summer of 1945 to find Germany in ruins. Many of his family and friends are now dead, but his mother, Viktoria, has survived and is trying to rebuild her struggling business. As the Cold War accelerates, Stefan falls in love with a girl from East Berlin, an affair that will have far-reaching repercussions upon the lives of everyone connected with the couple.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

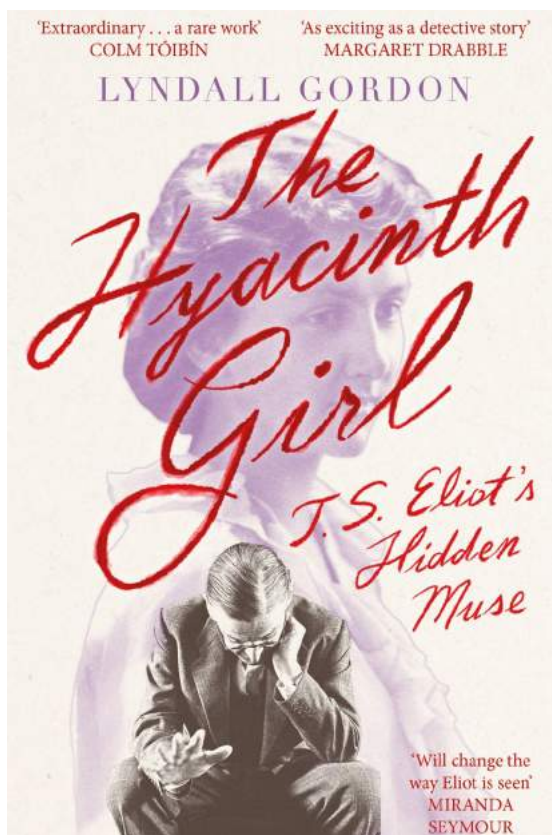

Jenny Glanfield studied German at school and college and her first job was in Germany, after which she lived and worked in Paris, Austria and Italy, before marrying and settling in England, where her jobs usually used her German language skills. Following an arduous work trip to Germany, she realised there was a book inside her that needed to be written. That book eventually turned into three, forming The Berlin Trilogy.

An intellectually stimulating, emotionally riveting and revelatory work of first-class literary biography

Longlisted for the 2023 PEN Award for Biography

'As exciting as a detective story' – Margaret Drabble

'A number of good books have marked the centenary of "The Waste Land"... but, for me, the most brilliant and incisive new book on Eliot is Lyndall Gordon's The Hyacinth Girl.' - Colm Tóibín, Irish Times, Best Books of the Year

Among the greatest of poets, T.S. Eliot protected his privacy while publicly associated with three women: two wives and a churchgoing companion. Yet he concealed a long-time love for an obscure American: Emily Hale, a drama teacher to whom he wrote (and later suppressed) over a thousand letters. Hale was the source of 'memory and desire' in 'The Waste Land': she is the Hyacinth Girl.

Drawing on the dramatic new material of the recently unsealed letters Eliot wrote to Hale, Lyndall Gordon discloses a hidden Eliot. Emily Hale is now revealed as the first and consistently important woman of life – and his art. Gordon also offers new insight into other spirited women in his life and work: Vivienne, his flamboyant and troubled wife; Mary Trevelyan, his companion in prayer; and Valerie Fletcher, his loyal secretary and long-term devotee, to whom he proposed when his relationship with Emily foundered. Though Eliot kept these women apart, they in their different ways spurred his transformations as poet, expatriate, convert, and, finally, in his latter years, with Valerie, a man 'made for love.'

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Lyndall Gordon is one of the world's foremost Eliot scholars and a hugely acclaimed biographer, in particular of the lives of literary women.

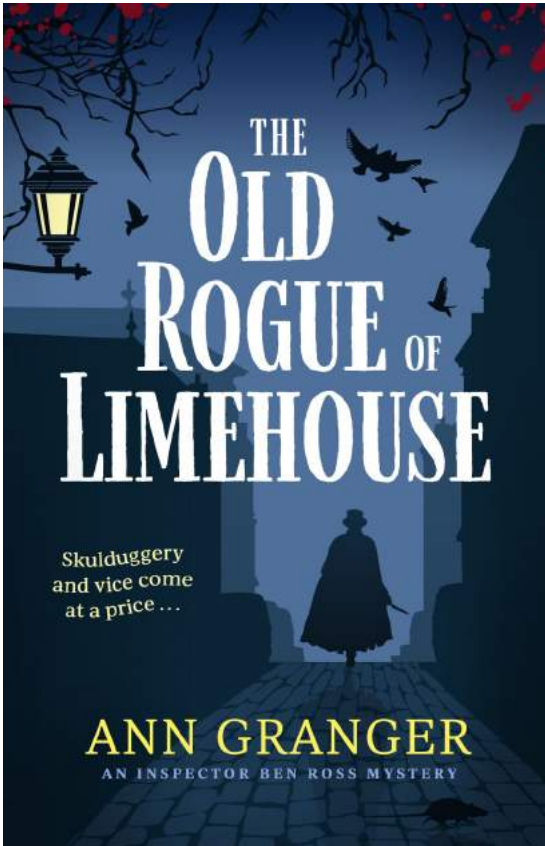

She has won the Cheltenham Prize and the James Tait Black Prize and been longlisted for the Samuel Johnson Prize. Her Emily Dickinson biography, LIVES LIKE LOADED GUNS, was shortlisted for the Duff Cooper Prize and the Comisso Prize in Italy. Fazi also publish her Charlotte Bronte biography A PASSIONATE LIFE and have recently bought her group biography OUTSIDERS. Her earlier biography, T.S. ELIOT: An Imperfect Life has been a tremendous commercial success in China.

Lyndall was one of the first scholars present for the unsealing of T.S. Eliot's trove of letters, the Emily Hale archives at Princeton. She plays a key part in a BBC Arena documentary, T.S. Eliot: Into The Waste Land, which was broadcast in 2022 for the centenary of Eliot's great poem.

A beautiful, empowering memoir about creating a family in the midst of chaos, and learning new ways to find happiness

Prizewinning Kerry Hudson is celebrated for her emotionally and politically powerful writing about growing up in poverty. In NEWBORN she asks: what next, after a childhood like hers? What hope is there of creating a different life for herself, let alone future generations?

In this exquisitely written, moving and inspiring memoir, we see how Kerry found love, what it took to decide to start a family of her own and how fragile every step of the journey towards parenthood was. All along the way, she faces obstacles that would test the strongest foundations, from struggles with fertility to being locked down in a Prague maternity hospital to a marriage in crisis. But over and over again, her love, hope, fight – and determination to break patterns and give her son a different life – win through and light her path.

LOWBORN: Growing Up, Getting Away and Returning to Britain's Poorest Towns (UK: Chatto & Windus). Kerry Hudson is proudly working class but she was never proudly poor. The poverty she grew up in was all-encompassing, grinding and often dehumanising. Twenty years later, Kerry's life is unrecognisable. She's a prize-winning novelist who has travelled the world. But she often finds herself looking over her shoulder, caught somehow between two worlds. LOWBORN is Kerry's exploration of where she came from, revisiting the towns she grew up in to try to discover what being poor really means in Britain today and whether anything has changed.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

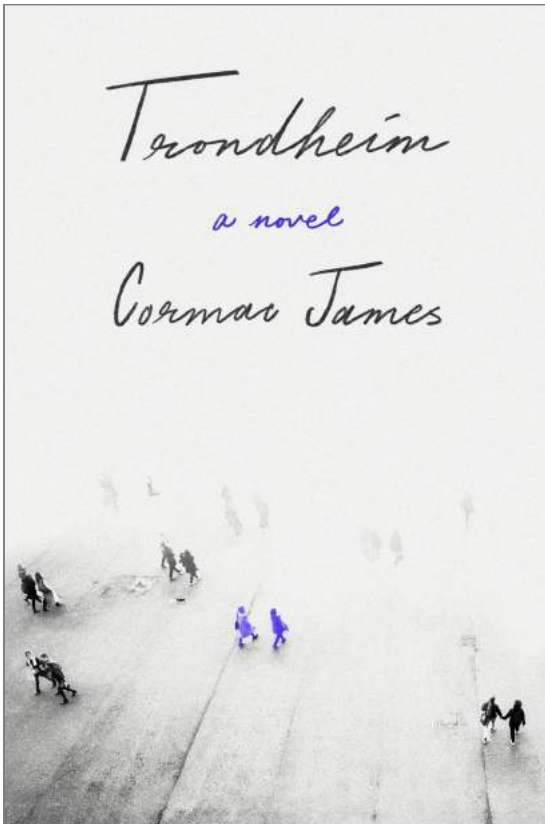

Kerry Hudson was born in Aberdeen. Growing up in a succession of council estates, B&Bs and caravan parks provided her with a keen eye for idiosyncratic behaviour, material for life, and a love of travel.

Her first novel, TONY HOGAN BOUGHT ME AN ICE-CREAM FLOAT BEFORE HE STOLE MY MA (Chatto & Windus), was shortlisted for eight literary prizes, and won Scottish First Book of the Year. Kerry's second novel, THIRST, was shortlisted for the Green Carnation Prize and won the Prix Femina Etranger in France. Her first work of non-fiction, LOWBORN (2019) became a Times bestseller and was hailed as 'One of the most important books of the year' by the Guardian.

Kerry writes for publications including The New York Times, Guardian, Big Issue and Press and Journal, and is a columnist for The Herald. In 2022 she was nominated for Columnist of the Year in the Regional Press Awards.

A spare yet haunting novel by a consummate stylist, probing the limits of love, hope, and forgiveness

For readers of Annie Ernaux, Gerbrand Bakker and Olga Tokarczuk.

‘Cormac James’s writing is very assured, with a harsh poetic edge.’ – Rose Tremain

‘James’ delicate, incisive third novel captures with forensic accuracy the subtle tensions in the marriage... Pierre’s medical situation is acute and dramatic, but the women’s marital troubles, mundane and chronic, are the real subject of this extraordinary and meticulous little book. An X-ray picture of the subcutaneous breaks and sprains in a rocky relationship.’ – Kirkus, Starred Review

In Norway, thousands of miles from home, a student drops dead on the street. A passerby revives his heart, but he remains in a coma from which he may never wake.

His mothers rush across the continent to his bedside where they endure the strain of helpless waiting. As the tense hospital vigil continues day after day and they vacillate between extremes of hope, fear, and psychic pain, their troubled relationship is pushed to the edge, as each tries to cope in their own distinctive way.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

International bestseller Peter James returns with his 19th Roy Grace, tackling illegal puppy smuggling

'Once again, deep research, vile behaviour and much-needed humour combine to produce ruthlessly efficient entertainment. Pedigree fun.' – The Times

When a young farmer confronts intruders in the middle of the night he has no idea that minutes later he will be left dying in a pool of blood. What's more chilling is what the perpetrators were willing to kill for.

At the scene of the crime, Detective Superintendent Roy Grace soon realises this is no isolated robbery gone wrong but the tip of the iceberg of a nationwide crime wave, in which ruthless organised gangs are making more money from the illegal trade in popular dogs than from drugs. A trade which pits him up against some ruthless people who will kill anyone who gets in their way. Because where there is greed, there is murder.

A profoundly affecting, intimate human story framed by the seismic sweep of history

1940: Frank Hawks is running a ramshackle bar in Puerto Rico when his mother-in-law, Marion, shows up out of the blue, demanding he comes back to New York – the city Frank fled to from Germany when his wife (and Marion’s daughter, Rachel) was shot by Nazis as the three of them attempted to escape persecution.

Frank reluctantly returns with Marion, where they meet an old friend, Willard, who’s beleaguered by his own loss: his 10-year-old nephew has disappeared in Paris, a city increasingly in danger of being invaded by the approaching German army.

Recognising something of his own plight as a young orphan – and desperate to escape New York once more – Frank takes it upon himself to go to Paris in search of the boy. But what he finds in France will be very different: a new chance at love, and a death-defying rescue he has not anticipated.

Master storyteller Zakes Mda takes us from Lesotho's Mountain Kingdom to Johannesburg, the City of Gold, through the fascinating history of Lesotho's vibrant famo music tradition and a cast of memorable characters.

Our mountain village minstrel is an innocent in a world of fierce musical rivalry. Still playing a humble concertina in The Time of the Accordion, the boy-child yearns to acquire his own accordion, and to win the attention of his musical heroes, and the admiration of all. But when he heads to the city he becomes entangled in a darker world of organised crime and vicious gangs, which coalesce – as they do in real life today – around the warring famo music groups. Focused with fierce ambition only on his art, he is blind to the truths of love right in front of him.

With the wanderer's story interwoven with the remarkable history of famo music, gang wars and the battle for control of illegal mines, WAYFARERS' HYMNS is a rich, resonant new work, a memorable meditation on questions of freedom, identity and artistry. Mda closes the novel with his classic grace note: The end is always a journey... And what a journey!

MY FATHER'S HOUSE

Joseph O'Connor

A gripping novel of near-miraculous beauty – Irish #1 Bestseller, more than 50,000 hardbacks sold.

'A gripping, compelling and utterly brilliant read.' – Liz Nugent

'A spectacular, thrilling novel, offering much more than tensely plotted thrills. ... MY FATHER'S HOUSE celebrates triumphant against-the-odds camaraderie. It would require a present-day Puccini to do operatic justice to its tremendous tale.' – Peter Kemp, The Sunday Times

September 1943: German forces occupy Rome. SS officer Paul Hauptmann rules with terror, while an Irish priest, Hugh O'Flaherty, dedicates himself to helping those escaping from the Nazis. His home is Vatican City, the world's smallest state, a neutral, independent country in Rome where the occupiers hold no sway. Here Hugh brings together an unlikely band of friends – 'the Choir' – to hide the vulnerable under the noses of the enemy.

But Hauptmann's net begins closing in on the Escape Line and the need for a terrifyingly audacious mission grows critical. By Christmastime, it's too late to turn back.

Joseph O'Connor has created an unforgettable novel of love, faith and sacrifice, and what it means to be truly human in the most extreme circumstances. Based on an extraordinary true story, MY FATHER'S HOUSE is 'a literary thriller of the highest order' (The Observer) from a master of historical fiction: one for those who love absorbing narratives like BIRDSONG and ALL THE LIGHT WE CANNOT SEE.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Joseph O'Connor is the author of many novels, short story collections and works of non-fiction, as well as film and radio scripts and stage-plays. International bestseller STAR OF THE SEA sold more than a million copies and was published in 38 languages.

Filled with vivid, unforgettable characters, a spellbinding tale ideal for fans of Liz Hyder, Stacey Halls, Susanna Clarke and Imogen Hermes Gowar

Ambitious apprentice chemist Peter Woulfe has a secret interest in alchemy. When he is tasked with caring for a mysterious illustrated book, the Mutus Liber, he realises that the grimy underworld of Georgian London is even more dangerous than he believed.

Within an hour, the book is stolen by the light-fingered Sukie and Peter finds himself being pursued by threatening men who are willing to do anything to get the book back. Where in sprawling London might Sukie be found? Why is Peter so enthralled by her? And what is it about the Mutus Liber that is so enticing? As the search for the book becomes an urgent game of cat and mouse, it seems that the key to Peter's present might only be found in half-remembered events from his childhood, and then far further back still, in the mists of Irish myth.

Exploring the liminal spaces between magic and reality, spirit and matter, love and lust, SPARKS OF BRIGHT MATTER is filled with vivid, unforgettable characters. This spell-binding and unputdownable tale is perfect for fans of Liz Hyder, Stacey Halls, Susanna Clarke and Imogen Hermes Gowar.

‘Alan Parks is in the same league as Ian Rankin and Louise Welsh.’ – Sarah Pinborough

March 1941. Joseph Gunner, an ex-cop, arrives back in Glasgow, nursing a painful war wound and a painkiller addiction. His city is in chaos, suffering heavy bombing, and his old boss Drummond persuades him to help investigate a body found in the wreckage of a destroyed building. When the body turns out to be of a German, mutilated to disguise his identity, things get more complicated.

As Gunner investigates, another body appears and he discovers he’s not the only one with an interest in the dead men. Two undercover secret service men are also in Glasgow. When he helps one of them, the eccentric Nickerson, out of a jam, he tells Gunner there is a reason the men look so similar. They have been chosen because they look like Rudolf Hess. They are spare lookalikes.

With Nickerson’s help, Gunner uncovers a plot by a section of the British Establishment to end the war by appeasement via a meeting with Hess – a meeting so important that Hess is prepared to fly into Scotland. Gunner has to stop the meeting happening: Britain’s future is at stake. But the attempt might well cost him his life...

1842. Stubborn, free-spirited Emily Brontë would like to stay at home forever, but her sister Charlotte has other ideas

A 'Best Historical Fiction Book for 2023' in The Times

'The description of the final weeks of Emily's life is almost unbearably moving... For all this, the book's lasting impression is not of melancholy but unquenchable vitality... Powell has served her heroine loyally.' – Financial Times

'I was spellbound by this fictionalised portrait of Emily Brontë, brimming with the texture of the dank, wild hills of Yorkshire, the weight and power of grief, and the contentment to be found in daring to forge one's own path in the world. To read Karen Powell is to be constantly delighted and intrigued; each sentence is so sharp, so shining.' – Elizabeth Macneal

Isolated from society, Emily Brontë along with her brother and four sisters spend their days inventing elaborate fictional realms or roaming the wild moors above their family home in Yorkshire. When the time comes for them to venture out into the world to earn a living, each of them struggles to adapt, but for Emily the change is catastrophic. Torn from the landscape to which she has become so passionately bound, she is simply unable to function.

To the outside world, Emily Brontë appears taciturn and unexceptional, but beneath the surface her mind is in a creative ferment. A violent phenomenon is about to burst forth that will fuse her imaginary world with the landscape of her beloved Yorkshire and change the literary world forever.

FIFTEEN WILD DECEMBERS is an evocative and affecting novel that deftly explores the imagination, liberty – physical, sexual, spiritual, imaginative – sisterhood, the pull of home, and the power of nature. It will be sure to be loved by Brontë fans and readers of historical fiction, including the novels of Maggie O'Farrell, Kate Atkinson, and Sarah Winman.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

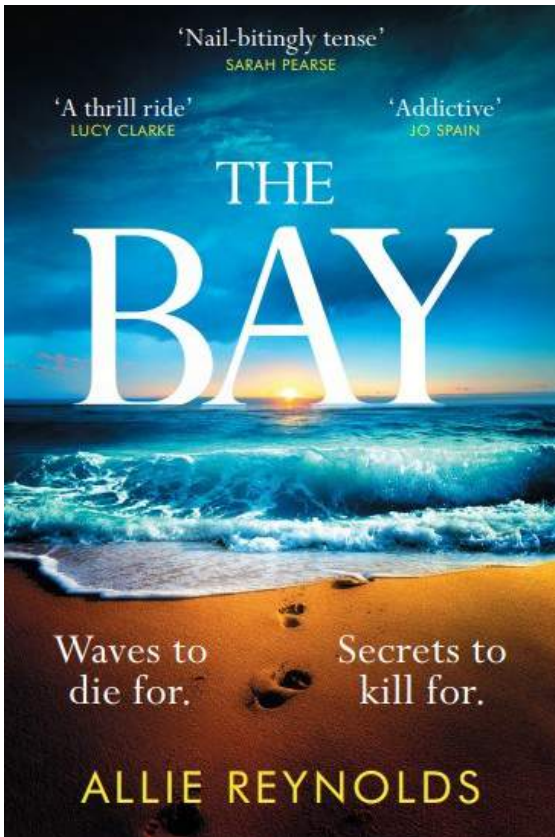

Karen grew up in Rochester, Kent. She left school at sixteen but returned to education in her mid-twenties, reading English Literature at Lucy Cavendish College, Cambridge. Karen lives with her family in York and works at York Minster Fund, a charity which raises money for the conservation and restoration of York Minster. THE ADMIRAL'S DAUGHTER (8) sees Kydd, now Captain of the HMS Teazer, caught in escalating tensions between England and France. BEACH READ meets EMILY IN PARIS in this fresh and poignant romantic comedy

Twenty-six-year-old one-hit wonder novelist Rosie Watkins wants to get one thing straight: she is not running away. Has she sub-let her apartment in New York City? Yes. Has she deleted her social media so that no one besides her family knows what she's doing? Yes. Has she booked a one-way ticket to London? Also, yes. But that does not mean she's running away. She just needs... something new.

Hence, London. Maybe once she's there, she'll finally be able to get over everything the past year has thrown at her and move on with her life. Rosie quickly finds her footing with some new friends: magnetic Tara who might be secretly in love with her friend, Pat; Saoirse, a serial dater who doesn't believe in love and Deepti, who's navigating a career crisis that could change the course of her life. They all welcome Rosie with open arms – all except George: moody, arrogant, full-of-himself George, who just happens to think that Rosie is an “entitled, annoying, energetic American.” He also just happens to be Tara's twin brother – tall, dark, tattooed, super hot and definitely off limits.

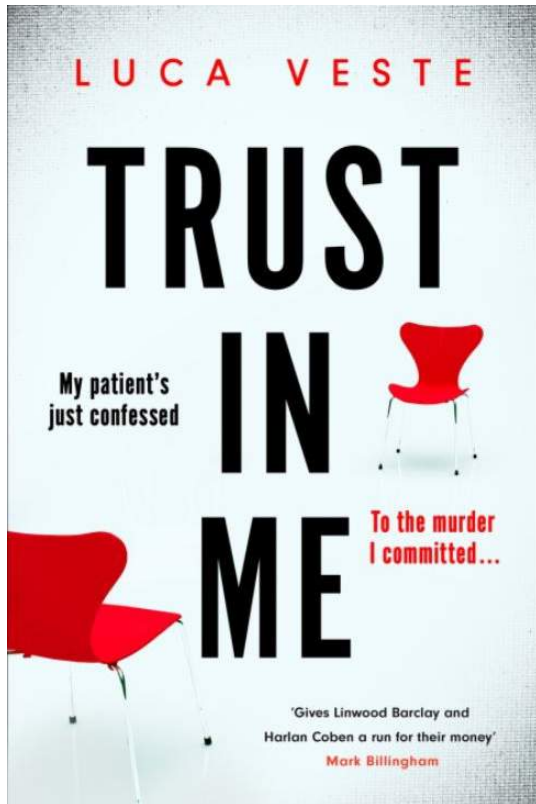

But the more settled Rosie becomes in London, the more her past continues to haunt her. So, what exactly is Rosie hiding? Just how bad was that break-up back in the city? And can don't-even-go-there George be that someone to help her move on?

Haunting work about being a writer and a walker, the knowing and unknowing of a complex city

‘One of the best writers in the world... one of the great modern prose stylists.’ – Teju Cole

‘Mysterious, lyrical and wickedly funny. Vladislavić is one of the most significant writers working in English today. Everyone should read him.’ – Katie Kitamura

‘Vladislavić is among the top writers on the contemporary world stage and this luminously intelligent book on how memory becomes fiction, on the narratives we tell about ourselves and others, on contested stories is a perfectly-cut jewel.’ – Neel Mukherjee (on THE DISTANCE)

THE NEAR NORTH carries echoes of Ivan’s award-winning PORTRAIT WITH KEYS (US: Norton, UK: Granta), which Geoff Dyer described as ‘one of the most ingenious love letters – full of violence, fear, humour and cunning – ever addressed to a city’, but it is at the same time an entirely original and surprising work of quiet power.

THE NEAR NORTH is book about walking, cities, ghosts and trees, which also explores family, friendship and sudden loss. It feels like an intimate privilege to share the author’s thoughts and observations – wryly playful at times, fiercely serious at others – as he navigates his deeply divided city, closely examining its peculiar and moving signs, its demolition sites, felled trees, guerrilla gardens and fresh scars. Auto-fiction, travelogue, psychogeography – however you choose to describe it, THE NEAR NORTH is a book that will delight readers and win Ivan new admirers.

Tranan in Sweden re-issued THE EXPLODED VIEW (‘a startling collection’, New Yorker) and THE RESTLESS SUPERMARKET in September 2022. Utopia Editore have acquired Italian rights to THE DISTANCE and THE EXPLODED VIEW and there are recent deals for Ivan’s work in Spain and Turkey. No. 1 New Historical Thriller in US Amazon Kindle Chart

'A sparkling novel and a complete delight to read. The characters and world are wild, vivid and enchanting. A wry, warm and proper rib-tickling slice of dirty Victorian gothic. I can't wait to see what Minnie and Albert are up to next.' – Julia Crouch

'Neatly weds historical detail and quiet wit.' – Nick Rennison, The Sunday Times

'Ms Walsh does a splendid job depicting Minnie's flea-bitten yet appealing theatrical world and Albert's monied yet treacherous milieu.' – Tom Nolan, Wall Street Journal

THE INNOCENTS:

London, 1876. The Variety Palace Music Hall is in trouble, due in no small part to a gruesome spate of murders that unfolded around it a few months previously (see THE TUMBLING GIRL for more!).

Then another body is found dead in a trunk, and a strange connection starts to emerge.

The crimes will propel the unlikely duo into the shady world of illegal gambling, dog fighting and monkey kidnappings as they trace things back to a tragedy that took place fourteen years ago, leaving 183 children dead. And given that the incident touched so many people's lives, the pool of suspects is very wide...

Timely literary thriller – a high-stakes battle for survival in the superbly-evoked High Arctic

Featuring a fierce and complex female central character, WHITE ROAD is a gripping read – a spectacular account of maritime disaster, but also a beautifully written story of escape and survival in the wastes of an Arctic winter.

While its early sections contain some epic action (think CHERNOBYL or THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE), the novel also has the evocative beauty and sense of landscape of MISS SMILLA'S FEELING FOR SNOW and ARCTIC DREAMS.

Carrie Essler is an ex-Navy rescue swimmer, now working for the Canadian Coast Guard. Transferred to a remote outpost after a bitter break-up, she finds herself in dire peril when an oil rig explodes in the Beaufort Sea. Carrie is presumed dead – but she is stranded on a small boat in a nightmarish landscape of oil-laced ice. With her is a dying man, a paralysed stranger she must try to save, and find a way back to civilisation for them both. An epic, heart-clenching struggle for survival ensues, written with great immediacy and often stark beauty.

But what caused the explosion? Accident or environmental terrorism? The injured man knows, but he's not talking. The rig's corporate director, Jim Ross, is Carrie's friend, but he is wrestling with both the catastrophic aftermath and his own guilty secrets. But it is only Ross who believes – against all evidence and odds – that Carrie is alive.

As the oil spills spreads, Ross battles to mount a rescue mission to find Carrie. But is his obsession merely a way to try to assuage his own culpability? And what real hope is there that she could have survived?

A HISTORY OF WATER

Edward Wilson-Lee

Vivid narrative non-fiction with a flavour of THE NAME OF THE ROSE – poetry and history, murder and intrigue in 16th Century Portugal

Shortlisted for the James Tait Black Prize for Biography 2023

‘A very few times in the course of a reader’s life a book appears that shatters one’s assumptions about how and why things came to pass. A HISTORY OF WATER is one such book. A mind-blowing achievement.’ – Alberto Manguel

‘A truly engrossing read. Wilson-Lee has the rare knack of re-visiting even the most familiar places as if they were being discovered for the first time. His prose is rich, fluent, absorbing, and free from any affectation. He guides his readers through a kaleidoscope of detail, interrelating various themes with consummate skill, each time shedding very bright light on the origins of global history while remaining firmly rooted in the most meticulous yet unobtrusive scholarship.’ – Fernando Cervantes

A HISTORY OF WATER follows the interconnected lives of two men across the Renaissance globe. One of them – an aficionado of mermen and Ethiopian culture, an art collector, historian and expert on water-music – returns home from witnessing the birth of the modern age to die in a mysterious incident, apparently the victim of a grisly and curious murder.

The other – a ruffian, vagabond and braggart, chased across the globe from Mozambique to Japan – ends up as the national poet of Portugal.

The stories of Damião de Góis and Luís de Camões capture the extraordinary wonders that awaited Europeans on their arrival in India and China, the challenges these marvels presented to longstanding beliefs, and the vast conspiracy to silence the questions these posed about the nature of history and of human life.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Edward Wilson-Lee is a Fellow in English at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, where he teaches medieval and Renaissance literature. After growing up in Kenya and Switzerland, he went to university in London, New York, Oxford and Cambridge, living briefly in Mexico and New Orleans in between.

His previous books SHAKESPEARE IN SWAHILILAND and THE CATALOGUE OF SHIPWRECKED BOOKS have been widely acclaimed, published in the UK and US, and translated into 11 languages. He is now writing THE GRAMMAR OF ANGELS (William Collins, 2025).

LOOKING AT WOMEN LOOKING AT WAR: A WAR AND JUSTICE DIARY tells a story of Ukraine's civil society's quest for justice

LOOKING AT WOMEN LOOKING AT WAR: A WAR AND JUSTICE DIARY is Amelina's deeply moving and highly anticipated posthumous gift to her country. It began as the war diary of a Ukrainian novelist turned war crimes researcher following Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in 2022 and evolved into a story about a number of extraordinary women. It follows the paths of female journalists, human rights defenders, lawyers, and volunteers who document war crimes in Ukraine while the conflict is still ongoing.

Amelina described her book as 'detective story' in which she pursues not only the perpetrators but the quest for justice. The heroines of the book include Evgenia Zakrevska, a prominent lawyer turned soldier who helps to liberate towns in the Kharkiv region and participates in a historical trial online from the frontline, Oleksandra Matviychuk, who leads an initiative documenting tens of thousands of war crimes and wins a Nobel Peace Prize in 2022, and Yulia Kakulya-Danylyuk, the director of the Kharkiv Literary Museum who helps document the destruction of cultural heritage.

Every heroine has a connection to a prominent Ukrainian dissident or the so-called Executed Renaissance, a generation of Ukrainian writers killed by the Soviet regime in the 1930s. The stories of today's Ukrainians are thus interconnected with the dramatic history of the 20th century in the bloodlands.

LOOKING AT WOMEN LOOKING AT WAR combines elements of reportage, interviews and reflection, and is influenced by the work of Svetlana Alexievich and Ryszard Kapuscinski.

Victoria's reflections now carry an unbearable poignancy in the wake of her own death, killed by injuries sustained in a Russian missile strike as she dined in a pizza restaurant in Kramatorsk.

DOM'S DREAM KINGDOM tells the story of a city with a dramatic history, where the silences about past wars and mass murders are so unbearable that only an abandoned dog can trace the secrets and “speak” for the people who still cannot speak for themselves

Finalist for the European Prize for Literature
Finalist for Lviv UNESCO City of Literature Prize

The story follows three generations of the family of an old Soviet military pilot – a Korean war veteran – who settle in a city once a cultural centre of Europe, a place variously called Lemberg, Lwów, Lvov, and Lviv. The apartment that this Soviet family has inhabited since the '70s is, by coincidence, the former childhood home of Stanislaw Lem. A Polish writer of Jewish origin, Lem is one of the few survivors of the Holocaust in Lviv, who leaves the city forever after World War II. Because it is hard, if not impossible, for the humans to talk about the city's complicated past and their own traumatic memories of Soviet and Nazi atrocities, it is a dog named Dom who accepts the challenge to pick up the pieces of the family story and Ukraine's history.

Through Dom's voice, Amelina presents a fresh perspective on critical issues such as the supposed east-west divide in Ukraine, themes of migration and displacement, Lviv's history as a major Polish and Jewish metropolis, its dark history with the Holocaust, and its multiple transformations over the tumultuous twentieth century.

With flourishing contemporary language and pop culture references, Artem Chapeye paints a picture of modern Ukraine in a narrative reminiscent of John Wyndham's THE DAY OF THE TRIFFIDS and Richard Matheson's I AM LEGEND. He synthesises the experience of the start of Russia's eight-year war in the Donbas to depict the breakdown in Ukrainian society and the hardship of the migrant experience, foreshadowing with great prescience some of the current social dynamics to follow less than a year after the novel's publication. Chapeye also draws from the Covid-19 pandemic to depict the sense of isolation, the breakdown in connection exacerbated by technology, and the psychological toll of global change, something that many of us can now relate to.

Also available: THE UKRAINE (Books XXI, Ukraine 2018; Seven Stories, WEL 2023)

THE UKRAINE is a collection of twenty-six essays and stories that deliberately blurs the lines between nonfiction and fiction, leaving the reader wondering which of its pieces are true and which fictionalized.

A Finalist for the BBC Book of the Year, THE UKRAINE conveys an aroma of Ukraine that is distinctly Ukrainian: at times unglorifying and irreverent, at times loving and tender, at times uncomfortable and inconvenient. THE UKRAINE is every Ukrainian's Ukraine and encompasses the country's good, bad, obnoxiously ugly, and achingly beautiful.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Artem was born in the Western Ukrainian city of Kolomyia and now lives in Kyiv. He is the author of four novels and four books of creative non-fiction, and is a co-author of a book of war reportage. Artem is a four-time finalist of the BBC Book of the Year Award. His collection THE UKRAINE was a Finalist for the Lviv UNESCO City of Literature Prize (2018). His work has been translated into seven languages, and has appeared in English in the Best European Fiction anthology and in publications such as the Refugees Worldwide anthology, commissioned by the International Literature Festival Berlin. Kalaf is on a bus bound for Oslo where his band, Buraka Som Sistema, is due to perform at one of Europe's largest music festivals. But two border control agents become sceptical when he presents them with a Portuguese foreign residency card and an expired passport from an African country, Angola. As he sits in his cell waiting to be interrogated, Kalaf thinks about the events that have brought him there: why he was forced to travel by bus in the first place, and all the sacrifices he has had to make in the name of promoting Kuduro music – a dance music genre created in the streets of Luanda, Angola's chaotic capital.

Kalaf needs a European passport and Sofia helps him to get it by marrying him. Sofia is a white Portuguese anthropology student and a keen dancer. She was taught to dance by her stepfather, a black Angolan who fled to Lisbon after the fall of the Berlin Wall. Sofia's mother is a white returnee, forced to return to Lisbon along with 200,000 Portuguese-Angolans during the chaotic decolonisation process. Sofia inherited her passion for African music from her mother and stepfather and dreams of visiting Angola one day, a country she misses even though she's never been there.

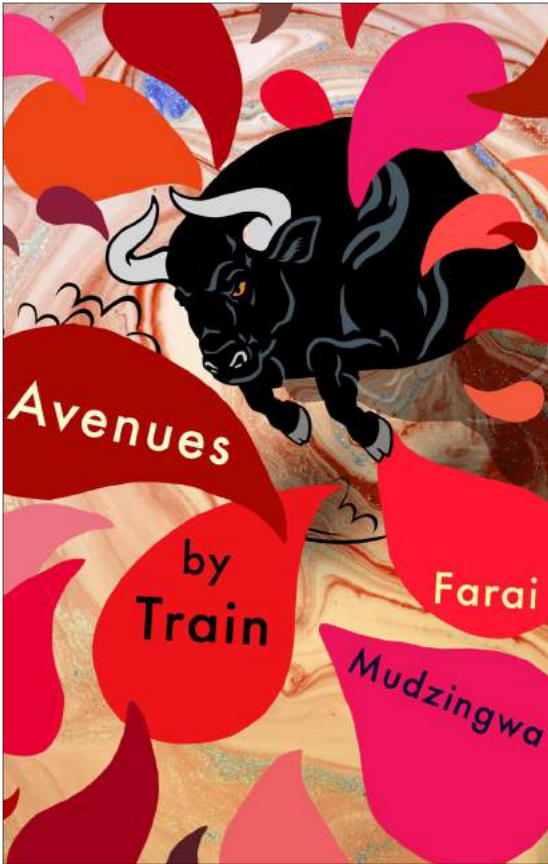

Viking and Mari are the two Norwegian officers who arrested Kalaf. Having Kalaf's fate in his hands made Viking assess his own life: what if he leaves Europe to find Ava his first girlfriend, for whom he still has feelings, and who now lives in Beirut. Viking finds himself in the middle of the crowd at the Øya music festival. He looks up at the stage and sees the Angolan there, a free man. Viking wants to feel free too. He will fly to Beirut on the very next plane.

Best known internationally for fronting the MTV Europe award-winning Lisbon-based dance collective Buraka Som Sistema, he is a celebrated columnist in Angola and Portugal. WHITES CAN DANCE TOO is his acclaimed debut novel. A dizzying, immersive debut from one of Zimbabwe's most exciting new writers

AVENUES BY TRAIN opens in 1974, with the news that yet another girl has been abducted by a water spirit in the small town of Miner's Drift. In the same incident another young girl, Natsai, is touched by the water spirit but manages to escape. The protagonist of the book, Jedza, is Natsai's younger brother, aged seven when we first encounter him in 1984. When Jedza later has a similar escape in a tragic incident involving a train and the death of his close boyhood friend, he is convinced that his life is haunted. He comes to believe that his life is stuck in a loop of hardship in Miner's Drift.

Jedza leaves for Harare in the hope that he will escape the darkness and superstitions of the small town. He instead discovers that the city has even deeper spiritual roots than Miner's Drift and the mysticism he encounters in the city leads him to come to terms with the spiritual forces in his bloodline and to eventually confront and resolve his traumatic past.

Inspired by the author's experience as a practising Catholic in his youth, the novel explores the conflict between Shona spiritualism and Christianity in urban contemporary Zimbabwe. With wry humour evident from its early chapters, this is a bildungsroman of sorts, where nostalgic childhood reminiscences are juxtaposed with scenes depicting the social and economic degeneration of the country, inspired by the author's experience living in The Avenues, a red-light district of Harare.

This eclectic, playful and experimental novel showcases a fresh new voice in contemporary African writing, recalling the fast-paced, riotous satire of Alain Mabanckou and Fiston Mwanza Mujila. Whilst paying homage to his literary heritage in this consciously intertextual novel, Mudzingwa pushes the boundaries of both content and form, with strands of magical realism running alongside hyper-realist immersion, shifts in perspective and time, and a multiplicity of different narrative voices and styles.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Farai Mudzingwa's short fiction has been published by Weaver Press, Kwani? and Enkare Review II and his longform articles and reporting have been featured in Chimurenga Chronic, The Mail & Guardian, The Johannesburg Review of Books, Africa Is A Country, This Is Africa, The Africa Report and New Humanitarian. An illuminating, timely work of reportage

In 2014, the Russian army, with support from local militants, occupied parts of Ukraine's two easternmost regions, Donetsk and Luhansk; regions that were the beating industrial heart of the socialist utopia in the Soviet era, and where coal extraction has exhausted both the human population and the natural resources. These regions have suffered from the post-Soviet chaos for decades.

In late 2016, the author set out on a research trip to the East to answer the common questions of those who've never been to the region. He takes his readers on a complicated, painful and hopeful trip across the Ukrainian East, guiding them through encounters with local citizens, archival research, and conversations with prominent cultural figures from the region, such as writer Serhij Zhadan and historian Ihor Kozlovskyi, held hostage and released after 700 days of captivity. Readers will encounter the miners, the Belgian and British investors who founded the eastern cities, the priceless coal, events of the First and Second World War, the bloody Soviet history, the activists who are now working to improve the country, and sweet memories of a lost paradise.

Oleksandr writes that he had never been to Eastern Ukraine until 2016, and wanted to better understand the part of his country where war was breaking out, investigating and debunking many of the stereotypes and myths about the region. His encounters with its inhabitants are varied and revealing, always narrated with great nuance and empathy.

A powerful collection of personal essays chronicling a year of the war in Ukraine

The story of a 34-year-old writer who has lost his home. Whose parents now live far away in another part of the country. Whose close friend has been killed in action in Donbas. Whose wife is volunteering. He is having nightmares and is unable to think of his past. But he has stories for the world to hear.

Already heralded as a classic in the making, this highly anticipated book combines essays, non-fiction narrative, and interviews with military personnel, volunteers and refugees from different regions of Ukraine, detailing their stories and experiences of living through the war. The central symbol of the book is the “language of war”. Oleksandr takes a close look at not only the changes taking place in the language during this full-scale invasion, but also its symbolic dimension. The way in which people express hatred for the occupier and how they show love for their country.

Essays included in the book have been published in the Financial Times, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, and in Ukrainian, French and Polish anthologies. Oleksandr’s first essay for the FT Weekend, published barely a fortnight after the invasion, elicited a global response, culminating in appearances on CNN and NPR. In December 2022, Oleksandr’s second essay ‘We will rebuild everything: war, loss and faith in Ukraine’ was the FT Weekend lead feature, and was described by FT Weekend Editor Alec Russell as ‘a stunning personal essay’.

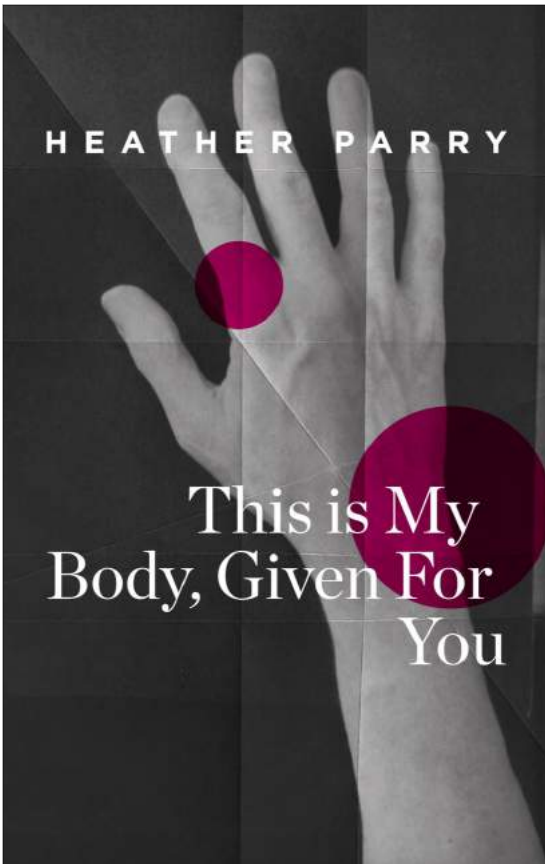

Oleksandr’s work and personal story has been featured in the New Yorker, Dagbladet and BBC radio reports, and his words from the book became the epigraph for the New Yorker-produced documentary “The Liturgy of Anti-tank Obstacles” by Dmytro Sukholytkyy-Sobchuk (the film was screened at the Toronto International Film Festival and at the Sundance Film Festival). His theme of The Language of War and his powerful opening address to the Lviv International Book Forum in October 2022 was the inspiration for Michael Goldfarb’s BBC Radio 4 documentary, Ukraine: War and Words.

A claustrophobic, surrealist, queer gothic novel set in Edwardian London, exploring mother-daughter relationships, sexuality, class, colonialism and the body

‘Heather Parry is a literary star of the future.’ – Kirsty Logan, author of THINGS WE SAY IN THE DARK

Marguerite Périgord is locked in the attic of her family home, a disintegrating Chelsea house, with a Singer sewing machine, a copy of Mrs Beeton’s Book of Household Management and a taxidermied bat with the feet of a duck. She has been confined by her mother, Cécile, who is concerned about her engagement to an older, near-penniless solicitor and wishes to educate her daughter on proper married conduct, lest she drag the family’s good name into disrepute.

Marguerite’s weeks are punctuated by small but highly decadent meals brought by her mother, by letters from her betrothed and by her attempts to memorise the writings of Mrs Beeton, who knows everything there is to know about mainstream femininity and how to be a woman. When a carrion crow begins to nest in a hole in the attic, Marguerite befriends the creature and becomes jealous of its freedom, leading her to reappraise her situation and reconsider her mother’s intentions. How long has she been in the attic, why are her fiancé’s letters becoming more distant, and is the Périgord name really something to be so proud of?

THE HA-HA

Tom Shakespeare

An entertaining romp through the English establishment, complete with crumpets & croquet

Our hero Fred Twistleton invites a group of friends to celebrate his fortieth birthday with him at Threeewood Hall, a rented stately home in Suffolk. Fred is a small-town solicitor, who has spent twenty years in a wheelchair after an accident on holiday after graduation. As a result, he has a sexual problem which means that he has never consummated a romantic relationship. The birthday party guests include Fred's brother and sister-in-law; his best friend from school, Hugh, who is now an outsider living in a van; the friend he flat-shared with after university together with his new Latino boyfriend; his agent friend Mary, who he wants to represent his memoir; and the celebrity foreign correspondent Heather, on whom Fred has had a crush for the last twenty years. And a dog.

In the finest tradition of P.G.Wodehouse, THE HA-HA incorporates a purloined manuscript, a stolen pig, a sinking, several falls, many misinterpretations and plenty of jokes. Fred's life is marked by a tragedy, but by the end of the novel he is on the brink of a new chapter in his life, thanks to his best friend, his sister-in-law and an unusual woman who looks after pigs.

A contemporary Jewish story that will appeal to readers of Francine Prose and Philip Roth

Hannah and Eric are a successful couple living in North London with their three children, and Eric's father Yosef, a survivor of the camps. They are devout Jews who believe in the literal truth of the Old Testament, all except for their youngest son Tovyah. The death of Yosef – the family's link to pre-war Europe – throws the family into disarray. Elsie, the model daughter, disappears for four days, plunging the family into a living nightmare. When she returns, just as mysteriously as she left, she is strangely altered. Witnessing the complete transformation of their daughter's personality and some increasingly hard-to-explain events, Hannah and Eric begin to suspect Elsie is under the influence of black magic. Tovyah, a brilliant university student, believes his sister is suffering a mental collapse caused by his parents' antiquated beliefs. But who is right? And can the family be reconciled before tearing itself apart?

At the heart of the novel are two questions. What does it mean to be bound to an ethical and metaphysical system thousands of years old? And if you reject that system, what is left of your Jewish identity? Through revolving points of view, any certainty in the face of these questions is undermined, and we witness a family trying to reckon with both historical and personal tragedy. The result is a fast-paced literary novel, with elements of horror.

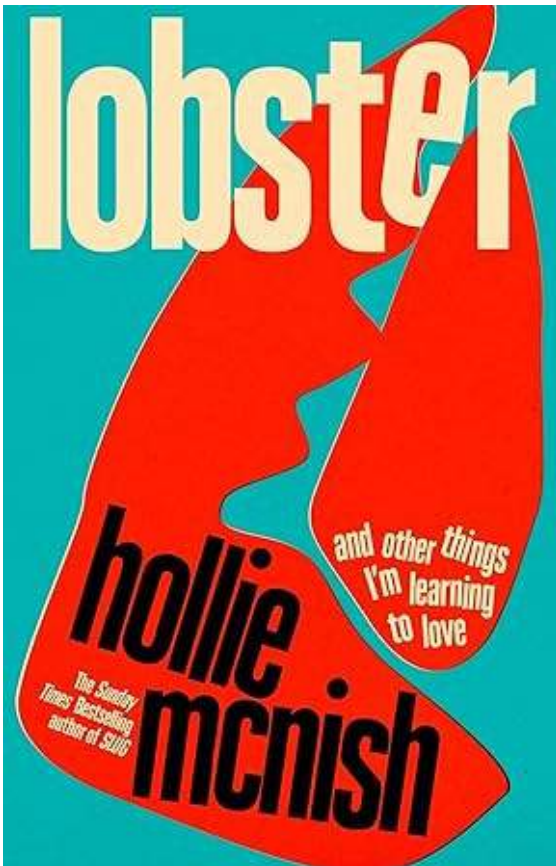

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Toby was born in London to a secular father and a Jewish mother. He studied English at Oxford University, before moving to America to pursue an MFA in Creative Writing at NYU where he was taught by E.L. Doctorow and Jonathan Safran Foer. A brand-new collection from the award-winning poet, the companion piece to the Sunday Times bestselling SLUG

‘Her rhymes have a driving quality, urgent words pinning down fleeting feelings’ – Observer

‘I love Hollie’s poems. There is such raw honesty and warmth and often humour within them. She is one of the best poets we have’ – Matt Haig

‘I’ve loved her work for years’ – Jo Brand

This book is written out of both hate and love for the world.

As people, we are capable of both love and hate; amazement and disgust; fun and misery.

So why do we live in a world that is constantly telling us to hate, both ourselves and others? We are told constantly to be repulsed by our own bodies, bodies that let us laugh and sweat and eat toast, amongst other activities; to be ashamed of pleasure; to be embarrassed by fun. In this brand-new collection, Hollie McNish brings her inimitable style to the question of what we have been taught to hate, and if we might learn to love again.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Hollie McNish is a published UK poet based between London, Cambridge and Glasgow. She has two poetry collections – CHERRY PIE and PAPERS – and an album, Versus, which made her the first poet to record at Abbey Road Studios, London.

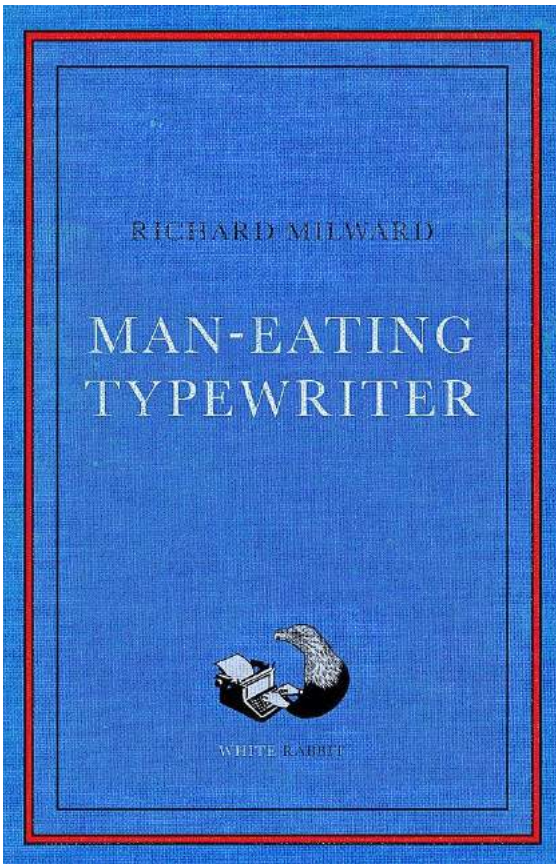

In 2016, Little Brown published her memoir of poetry and parenthood, NOBODY TOLD ME. It has been translated into 3 languages to date and won the Ted Hughes Prize for Poetry 2016. In June 2017, Picador published her third poetry collection, PLUM, to critical acclaim. PLUM was named in the Rough Trade Book of the Year list.

She has co-written the play OFFSIDE (Methuen), with Sabrina Mahfouz, and a new version of ANTIGONE for Storyhouse in 2021.

In 2021 SLUG & OTHER THINGS I’VE BEEN TOLD TO HATE was published by Fleet.

Wild, transgressive, erotic and resolutely uncompromising, this marks the return of a writer who is out there on an island of his own making; a book that will be talked about, celebrated and puzzled over for decades

Shortlisted for 2023 Goldsmiths Prize

‘A daring, meandering, brilliant book.’ – Literary Review

‘Single-handedly proving the novel isn't dead, Milward breathes new life into the form in this erudite, witty yet immaculately crafted, romp of a book’ – Ali Millar, author of THE LAST DAYS

‘MAN-EATING TYPEWRITER is truly extraordinary: as if Mervyn Peake and Kenneth Williams wrote a book with William Burroughs’ – Michael Bracewell, author of UNFINISHED BUSINESS

‘Remarkable, beautiful, magic. Like ULYSSES for those who can't cope with reading ULYSSES’ – Paolo Hewitt

Set at the fag-end of the 1960s and framed as a novel within a novel published by a seedy London purveyor of pulp fiction, MAN-EATING TYPEWRITER is a homage to the avant-garde counterculture of the 20th century. Told in Polari, it is the story of an anarchist named Raymond Novak and his plan to commit a 'fantabulosa crime' in 276 days that will revolt the world. A surrealistic odyssey that stretches from occupied Paris to the cruise-liner SS Unmentionable to lawless Tangier before settling in Swinging London, the book casts Novak as an agitator and freedom fighter – but, as his memoirs become more and more threatening, his publishers find themselves far more involved in his violent personality cult than they ever intended.

Constructed like a hallucinogenic cocktail of A CLOCKWORK ORANGE, PALE FIRE and Jean Genet's jailbird fantasies, MAN-EATING TYPEWRITER is an act of seductive sedition by a writer with unfathomable literary talent and boldness.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Richard Milward was born in Middlesbrough in 1984. His cult debut APPLES was published in 2007 when Richard was twenty-two years old, and sold in seven territories. It was followed by TEN STOREY LOVE SONG in 2009 and KIMBERLEY'S CAPITAL PUNISHMENT in 2012. APPLES was shortlisted for The South Bank Show/Times Breakthrough Award 2008, TEN STOREY LOVE SONG was chosen as one of Waterstones New Voices 2009, and KIMBERLEY'S CAPITAL PUNISHMENT was picked as Time Out Book of the Week in 2012. Both APPLES and TEN STOREY LOVE SONG were adapted for the stage, winning awards at the Edinburgh Fringe.

As Midgard's newest waitress, Australian born Marley is glad to have found a kind of family among the 'brigade' there. Like any family, however, it is dysfunctional. And by the looks of things this evening, possibly even lethal...

A violent event – an event she is struggling to piece together – has befallen Marley. She can't move. She can't speak. All she can do is observe the restaurant tonight, seeing but unseen. As she strains to recall what might have happened to her, she can only witness the tragedy that is about to unfurl in this hallowed space normally so meticulously run by Joanna, Midgard's famed yet unknowable head chef...
